

A 100 - DAY GUIDED JOURNAL

The Anchored Journal

100 journal prompts for mental health and fitness

Ten prompts, ten themes.
Train your mind alongside your body.

COACH ALLISE • GUIDED SELF-REFLECTION SERIES

Welcome

The mind is the most important thing you will ever train. The human body is capable of great things if only we gain control over our own minds. 1% better everyday for 100 days means 100% better at the end than when you began. So take these next 100 days and dedicate yourself to them. Pick one prompt every single day for 100 days, and write out your thoughts. They don't have to be long, I just ask that you are up front and honest with each and every answer.

For the next 100 days, give yourself permission to slow down, be honest, and get curious. Growth doesn't happen overnight. One prompt each day. One step closer to becoming someone you can always rely on. See you here tomorrow bestie.

HOW TO USE THIS JOURNAL

Each section opens with a short coaching note, followed by five spreads of two prompts each with room to write. Every section closes with a small affirmation from Coach Allise — read it, breathe, and carry it with you.

SECTION 01 • PROMPTS 01-10

Mindset & Motivation

A NOTE BEFORE YOU BEGIN

Motivation will not always show up on time. This section is about building a mindset that keeps you moving even when the spark isn't there — noticing your “why,” catching the stories you tell yourself, and choosing which ones are actually true.

When someone says “show up for yourself” what does that mean to you? How have you been doing that recently? What’s one way you can improve at showing up for yourself in this next week?

Why did you start this journey in the first place? What drives you forward?

What's one belief about yourself you're trying to prove true through training? Think things like "I believe that I am resilient, so I prove that by pushing myself day in and day out at the gym"

When you don't feel like training, what usually gets you through the door anyway?

What is one limiting belief I have about myself, and what concrete evidence proves that belief wrong?

Describe the version of yourself that you have always wanted to become

What's holding you back from becoming the person you wrote about in prompt 6? What steps do you need to take in order to become that person?

What's one excuse you've been leaning on recently, and what's really underneath it?

How do you want to feel — physically and mentally — one year from now? What habits and lifestyle does that person have?

10

What is one mistake you have made in the past, and what did you learn from it?

AFFIRMATIONS WITH ALLISE

“Everything will work out for me.”

take a slow breath, and repeat it until you believe it — you closed out “Mindset & Motivation” today.

SECTION 02 • PROMPTS 11-20

Body Image & Self-Compassion

A NOTE BEFORE YOU BEGIN

This section is not about fixing how you look. It's about softening how you speak to yourself, and remembering that your body is something you live in — not something you are constantly trying to improve.

11

What is one thing your body has done for you recently that you're grateful for?

12

Write a letter to your body but make it as if you are one of your loved ones. What would they say about your body? How does that make you feel?

13

Write 3-5 sentences describing yourself to a complete stranger, but you can't say anything about your body or your appearance

14

Write down everything that your body is experiencing right now. Are you breathing normally? Can you feel your heart beating?

15

What are some ways that you love to move your body that don't have anything to do with burning calories / getting steps / changing your physique? How can you do more of those this week?

16

Imagine you have a child (or imagine your child if you have one) and they tell you they hate the way they look. How would you respond to them saying that? How is that different from the way you talk to yourself about your body?

17

Why do you workout the way you currently do? Is it driven by wanting to grow / shrink parts of yourself? If so, where does that desire stem from?

18

Write out everything that your inner critic says about you. Every nasty thought you think about yourself. Now that it's written out, reflect on how it made you feel to write it down. Write down 5 reasons why everything you just wrote is false, or will be false someday.

19

What does 'progress' mean to you outside of the mirror or the scale?

20

Write a note to yourself and pretend to be your future self. What words of encouragement would they say? What advice might they give?

AFFIRMATIONS WITH ALLISE

“My body is not a project. It is my home.”

take a slow breath, and repeat it until you believe it — you closed out “Body Image & Self-Compassion” today.

SECTION 03 • PROMPTS 21-30

Habits & Consistency

A NOTE BEFORE YOU BEGIN

This section is not about proving how disciplined you are. It is about noticing what supports you, what repeatedly pulls you off course, and what consistency can realistically look like in your actual life.

21

What's one habit that I commit to doing every day no matter the circumstances? Why is it so crucial to my day to day routine?

22

When do you feel most drawn to divert from your plan? Why is that specific scenario calling you to go off plan? Is there a way to fix it?

23

What does a realistic version of 'consistent' look like for your actual life right now?

24

Complete this sentence ten times: "I am someone who..."

25

If I go off plan, what is one thing I can tell myself that will allow me to get back on plan tomorrow without guilt?

26

What is something that went well today? How can I make sure that something goes well again tomorrow?

27

Describe your perfect daily routine that includes everything you wish you could get done in a day. What is one way you can take a step towards making that reality?

28

Write about one time you maintained a habit even when you really didn't want to. How did it make you feel to get it done?

29

What's one thing you can prep or plan ahead of time to protect tomorrow's routine?

30

If this week repeated itself 8 weeks in a row, would you be happy with the outcome?

AFFIRMATIONS WITH ALLISE

“I don't have to be perfect to be consistent.”

take a slow breath, and repeat it until you believe it — you closed out “Habits & Consistency” today.

SECTION 04 • PROMPTS 31-40

Stress, Recovery & Rest

A NOTE BEFORE YOU BEGIN

Rest is not something you earn after working hard enough. This section is about learning to recognize when your body and mind actually need to slow down, and giving yourself permission to do it without guilt.

31

What does your body feel like when you're truly rested versus just not training?

32

Think about your life in 5 years. Will the things you are putting stress towards now matter then? If yes, write out how you hope you handled things. If not, write out why they are taking up so much mental space and how you can focus less on them.

33

How well did you sleep this week, and what affected it most?
How can you improve your sleep habits next week?

34

What's something outside the gym that's been taking up mental space lately?

35

What does recovery look like for you beyond just physical rest?
How can you maximize this without jeopardizing the rest of your routine?

36

When was the last time you felt fully present and not rushed?

37

What is one boundary you can set that will protect you from overstressing, overcommitting, or overthinking something?

38

How do you know the difference between being tired and being burnt out?

39

What helps you relax after a stressful day? Do you actually make time for it?

40

How do you plan your rest periods? Do you have enough rest? Maybe too much?

AFFIRMATIONS WITH ALLISE

“Rest is productive. My body deserves it.”

take a slow breath, and repeat it until you believe it — you closed out “Stress, Recovery & Rest” today.

SECTION 05 • PROMPTS 41-50

Goals & Vision

A NOTE BEFORE YOU BEGIN

This section isn't about chasing someone else's version of success. It's about getting specific — really specific — about what you want, and why it matters enough to you to keep going.

41

What will life look like when you look around and say “I made it”?

42

If you could only prioritize one goal in your life, what would that goal be and why does it matter so much to you?

43

If time and money played no part in your life, what would you go do? What's one step you can take towards making that a reality?

44

What would you need to believe about yourself to hit your biggest goal right now?

45

What do you want other people to say about you when you aren't in the room?

46

Where do you want to be — physically, mentally — one year from today?

47

Write out three goals you have hit recently, and what they meant to you to be able to hit. They can be as simple as “I made it to bed by 10 pm”

48

What does the person who already has what you want do differently on a daily basis?

49

What's one goal you've outgrown or changed your mind about, and why?

50

If your life was a movie but the audience only saw the past 24 hours of your life, would they know what your goals in life are? What would they want you to do?

AFFIRMATIONS WITH ALLISE

“I am allowed to want big things for myself.”

take a slow breath, and repeat it until you believe it — you closed out “Goals & Vision” today.

SECTION 06 • PROMPTS 51-60

Setbacks & Resilience

A NOTE BEFORE YOU BEGIN

Setbacks are not proof that you failed. This section is about reframing the moments that knock you off course, and finding the parts of yourself that already know how to get back up.

51

Describe a recent setback and what it taught you, without judging yourself for it.

52

Think of your last setback. Write out three “At least...” sentences about it. Ex: My flight got delayed and I missed my connection but at least now I don’t have to rush through the airport, at least I am going to have time to eat dinner, and at least I will get to where I need to go eventually.

53

What things that are related to your goals are directly within your control?

54

What have you learned about yourself through all of the things you have had to overcome?

55

What does 'getting back on track' actually require for you? Break it into actionable steps for when you stray from your plan

56

How do you usually cope with stress? Are these methods helping you or hurting you further?

57

What is one quote that you say to yourself or could say to yourself when you are having a hard time? Why does it resonate with you?

58

List out three things about you that make you someone who is able to handle difficult situations. How can you use those three traits more often?

59

What are things that trigger a change in your mood or cause a stray from the plan? How can you minimize those triggers?

60

What is one win you have had recently? How did you celebrate it?

AFFIRMATIONS WITH ALLISE

“Setbacks are not the end of my story.”

take a slow breath, and repeat it until you believe it — you closed out “Setbacks & Resilience” today.

SECTION 07 • PROMPTS 61-70

Gratitude & Perspective

A NOTE BEFORE YOU BEGIN

This section is not about pretending everything is fine. It's about noticing the small, steady things that are actually going right, even in the middle of a hard week.

61

What's one thing about your health you don't want to ever take for granted?

62

Who has supported you on this journey, and have you told them?

63

What is something that you can do now that you never thought you were going to be able to do?

64

What's one small, ordinary moment from this week you're glad you got to experience?

65

Write about something you are proud of yourself for recently

66

What's a challenge you're facing right now that's also, in some way, a privilege to have?

67

Who or what inspired you to keep going this week? Why did you find it inspirational?

68

What's something you used to struggle with that feels easier now? What is something you hope will start to feel easier soon?

69

What's one thing about today, specifically, that you're grateful for?

70

If you zoomed out on your whole journey so far, what would you thank your past self for?

AFFIRMATIONS WITH ALLISE

“I have so much to be grateful for, even today.”

take a slow breath, and repeat it until you believe it — you closed out “Gratitude & Perspective” today.

SECTION 08 • PROMPTS 71-80

Get to Know Yourself

A NOTE BEFORE YOU BEGIN

This section has nothing to do with your training plan. It's about slowing down long enough to remember who you are outside of your goals, your routines, and your progress.

71

What are your most important core values? How do those help shape the person you are and how you behave?

72

When do you feel the most at home? Who are you with, what are you doing, how are you feeling?

73

What does a truly perfect day look like to you? How can you create a life that allows you to live that day?

74

What is a habit or part of your routine that brings you joy?

75

Write a letter to your younger self. Give them advice and tell them about things they should spend less time worrying about

76

Fully describe the person you are right now vs the person you want to be. How different are they?

77

What would you attempt this week if you knew you couldn't fail?

78

What is my deepest desire at this very moment? Why is it so important?

79

What is my love language? How do I want to be loved and does that differ from how I show my love to others?

80

Who is my biggest inspiration? Why do I look up to them?

AFFIRMATIONS WITH ALLISE

“I am more than my goals.”

take a slow breath, and repeat it until you believe it — you closed out “Get to Know Yourself” today.

SECTION 09 • PROMPTS 81-90

Progress & Celebration

A NOTE BEFORE YOU BEGIN

Progress rarely looks like a straight line, and it rarely feels as big in the moment as it really is. This section is about pausing to actually notice how far you've come.

81

What's one victory from this week worth celebrating?

82

Rate the past week's effort on a scale of 1-10. How should I adjunct my effort for next week?

83

What's something that used to feel hard that now feels manageable?

84

Name one way you can make yourself 1% better today or tomorrow

85

Think back to a year ago. What was the most important goal in your life then? Did you achieve it? Do you still want it?

86

What is one thing in your fitness or health journey that has improved recently?

87

Did you make a new year's resolution? How is that going? What can you do to ensure that it comes true?

88

How do you celebrate your wins? No matter how big or small they may be.

89

What's one habit you now do automatically that used to take real effort?

90

If you told past-you what you've accomplished, what would surprise them most?

AFFIRMATIONS WITH ALLISE

“I am proud of who I am becoming.”

take a slow breath, and repeat it until you believe it — you closed out “Progress & Celebration” today.

SECTION 10 • PROMPTS 91-100

Identity & Long-Term Growth

A NOTE BEFORE YOU BEGIN

This section is about the person you're becoming, not just the body you're building. Habits fade in and out, but identity is what carries you long after the 100 days are over.

91

Who are you becoming through this process, beyond just physical changes?

92

What does 'a healthy person' mean to you, and do your habits match that definition?

93

What's the identity you're trying to grow into — 'I am someone who ___'?

94

What would the you that has already achieved all of your goals tell the version of you right now who is working towards them?

95

What's one non-negotiable you want to carry with you for the rest of your life?

96

How do you want health and fitness to fit into your life a year from now?

97

98

99

What is a recurring thought in your head that keeps you from becoming who you want to be?

100

If the last year were a chapter in your story, what would you title it? What would you want the next one to be titled?

AFFIRMATIONS WITH ALLISE

“I am exactly where I need to be.”

take a slow breath, and repeat it until you believe it — you closed out “Identity & Long-Term Growth” today.

DAY 100

You Made It

One hundred prompts ago, you decided that your mind was worth training as much as your body. Whether you moved through these pages in order, out of order, or circled back to a favorite more than once, the fact that you kept showing up is the whole point. That is what consistency actually looks like.

You are not the same person who wrote the first entry in this journal. You have more evidence now — of what you can carry, what you can recover from, and who you are becoming. Let this be a beginning, not an ending. Keep a page open somewhere for the days you still need it.
